

SHOW UP FOR SHABBAT

AJC Calls on Jews and Allies to Take Action Following Pittsburgh Synagogue Attack

From New York to New Zealand and from Utah to the UK, thousands of Jews and people of all faiths are pledging to #ShowUpForShabbat this weekend in solidarity with Pittsburgh's Jewish community and sending a resounding message that love triumphs over hate.

Will you join them?

HOW TO SHOW UP FOR SHABBAT

- If you want to attend Shabbat services this weekend (Nov. 2-3) and are already part of a synagogue – just show up! Bring a friend or three and be sure to use the hashtag #SHOWUPFORSHABBAT on Twitter and Facebook.
- If you want to attend Shabbat services but are not part of a synagogue, either join a friend who is, reach out to a synagogue near you (you can see a list from #SHOWUPFORSHABBAT campaign partner Jewish Federations of North America here) or contact your local AJC office by Noon ET on Nov. 2 for guidance on which area synagogues will be welcoming guests.
- If you are unable to attend Shabbat services, you are invited to watch a live stream of Shabbat services from Central Synagogue in New York City. Services begin at 6:00 PM ET on Friday, November 2, and 9:30 AM ET on Saturday, November 3.

AJC'S RESPONSE

Representatives from AJC's 22 offices across the United States are reaching out to clergy, diplomats, local government officials, and other civic leaders to encourage them to participate in the #SHOWUPFORSHABBAT campaign, while the organization's 11 international offices are working with partners in over 35 Jewish communities around the globe to launch similar initiatives locally.

Other local, national, and international Jewish organizations are being asked to encourage their members to participate in the campaign. Synagogues are being called on to welcome the anticipated influx of attendees at their Shabbat services with explanatory programming and rabbis are being asked to dedicate their sermons to discussing the initiative.
